

FIVE DEAD, MILLIONS LOSS IN KANSAS FLOODS

Fire Wrecks Pennsylvania Railroad Depot

HEAVY LOSS AS FLAMES DESTROY STATION

Many Firemen and Scores of Spectators Close to Death During Fire

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Fanned by wind, flames burst forth again in the smoldering ruins of the Pennsylvania railroad station this afternoon, threatening adjacent property.

Danger to firemen was increased as the blaze ate its way toward storerooms where munitions and oils are stored.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Fire fighters early today had under control a fierce blaze which wrecked the Broad street Pennsylvania railroad station with a loss estimated at more than a million dollars.

Many firemen and spectators had narrow escapes from death when four passenger cars crashed through the collapsing elevated structure, carrying with them a mass of twisted rails and steel.

Firemen were battling today to save the office section of the railway station.

Wildest confusion reigned among hundreds of passengers, who had fled from Pullman cars when all lights in the vicinity of the blaze were extinguished.

Excitement was increased by the roar of the heavy steel coaches as they crashed through the elevated structure.

Pennsylvania railroad officials said the blaze started about midnight in the baggage room and spread quickly to the mail room. Mail and baggage of considerable value was destroyed, but the exact loss will not be known until a check can be made.

Firemen Escape
Several passengers and a fireman or two were overcome when the fire started.

A locomotive and an entire train fell thirty feet when the train floor supports gave way. Another locomotive exploded. Police cleared streets in the vicinity and closed all stores.

Ten firemen imprisoned by a section of roof crawled along an elevated track and escaped just before the entire structure went down.

Sparks from the station started a second fire in the adjoining Fox Theatre building, under construction.

Six floors of the theatre structure were badly burned.

Council May Decide To Drop Depot Site

Discussion of the location of the new Southern Pacific railroad depot was scheduled to take place before the City Council this afternoon and at 1:15 p. m. before the council met, about sixty business men were present in the council chamber prepared to argue relative to the proposed action of the municipality in paying a part of the condemnation expenses to secure a depot site at the foot of Cortez avenue.

It was reported before the council convened that City Attorney Morrow will inform the council it has not the authority to spend the city's money as proposed. It is also reported at the city hall that the council will not take further action relative to the selection of a site and will let the matter rest wholly with the railroad company.

Property owners in the southern section of the city take the view that they do not care where the depot is located as long as they are not assessed.

Assess Tunnel Cost On Farmers, Ranchers

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Farmers and ranchers in Moffatt and Routt counties, Colorado, today lost in the supreme court of the United States their fight to escape an assessment by the Moffatt tunnel commission for the construction of a railroad tunnel under the Continental Divide. The Colorado courts declared the tunnel a public use and sustained benefit assessments against the grazing and agricultural lands in the two counties. These decisions were confirmed.

Poincare's Note Suggests Terms Of Allied Reply

LONDON, June 11.—Premier Poincare, in a note to London, has suggested that the allies send a joint reply to Berlin upon the following conditions:

1.—A demand for immediate cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland.

2.—Rejection of the proposals made by Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes of Washington, and the German government, that an impartial tribunal of international economic experts be appointed to determine how much Germany can pay and the method of payment.

3.—Rejection of the guarantees offered by Germany which included a mortgage upon railways and industry, customs, real estate pledges and monopolies upon tobacco and whiskey.

WOMAN POISONED BY BOOTLEG BOOZE

Dozen Other Persons Are Victims of Bad Liquor; Man Loses Sight

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—With a young woman reported dying at the emergency hospital from drinking bootleg whiskey and at least a dozen persons suffering various stages of poisoning as a result of drinking quantities of the intoxicants, police acted here today to overcome an alarming situation.

According to police, a large quantity of whiskey containing shoe polish, iodine, acids and other poisons, was placed on the Los Angeles booze market Sunday.

Matthew Schiltz, 21, today was minus the vision of one eye; Aurelio Campus, 17, was being treated for severe knife cuts across the throat, after an attack by a liquor-crazed man.

Stripped of valuables, with a large knife wound in his neck, and suffering from drinking poisonous liquor, Charles Sullivan, 38, was being treated today after being found in an alley way.

Several others were also given treatment at the emergency hospital for having drank bad illicit booze.

Man Made Blind

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—Told that he had been permanently blinded by bootleg whiskey made of wood alcohol, Walter Swansons, 45, a stevedore, became crazed at the central emergency hospital today and attacked another man who was saved from his fury by attendants only after a hard struggle.

Col. Thornton Buys Dr. S. S. Black Home

For several years Col. Tom C. Thornton has been a Glendale resident, owner of extensive real estate and loyal booster of the fast-growing city in the United States, and his many friends will be interested in the announcement made today that he has purchased the Dr. S. S. Black home at 2050 Kenneth road. The deal was handled by Mrs. Ethel R. Dietrich, South Brand boulevard realtor.

The consideration was $62,000, it is stated.

Colonel Thornton's first home in Glendale was at the corner of Dryden street and Central avenue. Upon selling this property he moved to Riverdale drive and Central avenue, and after disposing of this property he bought a home at La Crescenta.

Later he bought a home on the northwest corner of North Brand boulevard and California avenue. This property was sold by him, and is the site of a proposed new hotel building. Colonel Thornton then made his home on Campbell street, and recently at La Crescenta.

His many friends will join in congratulating him on his new Kenneth road home, which is one of the most beautiful residences on the heights, and is near the Mattison B. Jones home.

ASK BRITISH AID

MANY ATTEND GRAND VIEW CEREMONY

Hold Impressive Sunset Service in Behalf of New Mausoleum

The sunset service at Grand View cemetery, yesterday afternoon, when ground was broken for the new mausoleum and a crypt for historical records dedicated, was witnessed by 1000 residents of Glendale, Burbank and San Fernando valley points.

Particularly impressive was the ceremony of breaking ground, when to the strains of "Lead Kindly Light," sung by the Usona male quartette, Revs. Thomas E. Stevenson, Ernest A. Main, Leslie G. Parker and Thomas F. Allen of Burbank stood at the four corners of the mausoleum site and simultaneously lifted three spadefuls of sod each, carrying them to a mound, where the last spadefuls were deposited in exact synchronization with the final solemn word of the sacred hymn.

Deposit Records

Impressive also was the ceremony of depositing within the stone crypt of historical records sent by representatives from churches, schools, lodges, political bodies and other organizations from valley towns and cities.

Mayor James C. Crawford, of Burbank, as official receiver of historical records, led this ceremony with a very effective talk on the value of preserving human documents in some enduring way.

Burbank's contribution to the historical data contained within this crypt, which will be opened again for fifty years, includes a small china crypt, size 9x12x4 inches, manufactured by the Burbank china factory specially for the occasion and containing the official records of the city.

Records of Glendale deposited within the larger crypt include data furnished by the City Council, together with membership rolls of many lodges and clubs, in addition to church and school data.

As Sun Drops

The services opened at 4:10 o'clock in the afternoon, as the sun was beginning to sink low over the Griffith Park hills, casting back over the green Verdugos purple shadows that deepened as the historic minutes sped.

It was truly a sunset service, and as truly impressive and solemn, dominated from the beginning by the spirit of that sublime song of faith that opened the exercises, sung by the audience—"Holy, Holy, Holy."

The invocation was delivered by Rev. Thomas F. Allen of Burbank, after which Dwight W. Stephenson of Glendale addressed the large assemblage on "The Mausoleum Idea," pointing out that while death is inevitable, mankind has evolved in this beautiful, enduring method of interment, a monument to the dead that is a glory to the living, an ideal resting place for the temporal body.

He turned in the alarm and then hurried back to the hotel which was blazing. Half way out of bed was Halbach, who apparently had been overcome by smoke before he could escape, whom Thelan carried to safety.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID MARTHA BARNETT

Four Pastors Eulogize Life Of Casa Verdugo M. E. Church Worker

Impressive funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Casa Verdugo Methodist church for Martha Needham Barnett of 325 North Keenwood street, Glendale, who died Thursday, June 7, 1923, in this city, after several years of infirmity which became serious a fortnight ago. She would have been 74 years of age one month from today, having been born near Elizabethtown, Ky., on July 11, 1849.

It was because of the fact that Mrs. Barnett was instrumental in the affairs of the Casa Verdugo Methodist church, as well as the community, that makes her memory so cherished and a large throng gathered with sorrowing relatives to pay their last respects to her whom the Rev. C. R. Norton described as "one upon whom God had placed his hand."

As a charter member of the church she served as its first treasurer and devoted her effort to keep it in a community where children might be afforded a Sabbath school.

High Tributes Are Paid
Following the reading of the scripture by the Rev. J. C. Livingston, the pastor of the flock which she had so faithfully been a member, the Rev. Julius Soper, pastor emeritus, introduced Rev. Norton who knew Mrs. Barnett as a sister. In trembling voice he told of her sublime mission on earth and stated "no pen could write anything that would give but only a faint impression of this Christian woman."

"In my fifty years in the ministry she proved herself to be one of the elect; she assisted in every way possible to locate this church (Continued on page 6)

COMMENT

That's All

S. P. Depot Needs Anchor
Other Random Thoughts
Vigilantes Unnecessary
Glendale Well Governed

By Gil A. Cowan

STARTING the first day of the week, we note that the Southern Pacific depot is getting shored up on the west end of the City Council to such an extent that the system will have to consider its Glendale station as part of its rolling stock.

We also got into an argument over the subject as to whether there is poverty in Germany. Perhaps as much as there is in the United States, but the fact that people do not have but for their bread means nothing in Germany. They will make a substitute and sell it to America, or some other country as better and cheaper, but how about the fact they haven't the real article for themselves.

The Chamber of Commerce opens a drive for memberships with a banquet. That's a great idea, for if you feel in right and treat 'em right, they'll treat you right. An experienced animal trainer. All we advise is that the menu, especially the specifying course, be well boiled before serving. It is impossible to have a good old-fashioned stew.

"Vigilantes are going to protect the womanhood of Los Angeles," according to airy assertions made from the pulpits in the metropolis yesterday. We have our opinion of these self-appointed law and order organizations. We saw the work of one during the war from an "inside" vantage point—and believe me when I say there is only one way to have law enforced: "Pay people sufficient to do the work right."

The Los Angeles police department may stand convicted on several charges: First, an inefficient personnel due to rapid increases and low standards as compared with other cities. Second, the police department of Los Angeles is the political hickspittle of each succeeding administration with politicians controlling its every move. Third, the Los Angeles police department has never gotten a square deal from the public. In that it is sadly undermanned—always has been and always will be.

As individuals the policemen of Los Angeles likely measure up to office. They are good-natured, overworked individuals, most of whom are civic patriots, remaining at their posts. The vigilantes would do well to get acquainted with their own corner policeman and report to him what is going on in the neighborhood.

An organization would then be unnecessary, and it would appear before the council and insist that more officers, better paid officers, and the best type of men be employed as policemen.

Glendale is fortunate in being well governed. It has no need for vigilantes or other self-appointed defenders of the sanctity of the city.

The police department here is well manned and enough interested individuals are personally acquainted with the officers to keep things running nicely.

For all which we should be thankful, living as close to Los Angeles as we do.

Glendale had better watch as to its laurels. In the list of Southern California cities' building permits last month Alhambra stepped out in front and took the spotlight from Glendale.

Altogether now, folks. We've got to keep the ball rolling here. Be a booster and a builder. Remember, summer is the best season of the year for construction work. Let's go!

Mr. and Mrs. Cline and Mrs. Crandall are sisters. On Saturday Mrs. Cline celebrated her birthday and in her honor the two families had dinner and attended the theatre Saturday night in Long Beach, and on Sunday evening they were at the motorcade in Los Angeles for dinner and later attended the Egyptian theatre in Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Maurice Burke and children of 616 East Lomita avenue motored to Claremont yesterday. Later they were dinner guests of Mrs. Burke's mother, Mrs. J. J. Reynolds in Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Goudie, Sr., of 324 West Elk street, accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gordon and daughter, Patricia and Robert, the third, enjoyed a pleasant day at Redondo Beach yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Neigh, who have been guests for a year and a half of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lang at 328 West Vine street, will leave tomorrow for their home in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. R. O. Dickson and her two children arrived here last night from Denning, N. M., coming by way of San Diego, where they visited relatives for several days.

Mrs. Dickson and her eldest son, Everett, have been here for several weeks and plan to make their home in Glendale.

Mrs. Mary M. Wright of 318 North Jackson street, prominent member of the Glendale College Women's club, will leave tomorrow for three months at Palo Alto and in San Francisco. Mrs. Wright is the alumna of Leland Stanford university, and she will spend the greater part of the time until September 1 with Palo Alto friends.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"Backbone," from the pen of Clarence Buddington Kelland, the big Goldenwyn photoplay directed by Edward Solomon, is now showing at the Glendale Theatre.

This thrilling and romantic story, of a love that defied the ages, deals with the fulfillment in the twentieth century, in northern Maine, of a romance of two young persons who lived in France, hundreds of years ago.

The plot is so unusual and so different that it would not be proper to reveal it in this review. It is a picture that should be seen.

Alfred Lunt, famous stage star, makes his initial film appearance in "Backbone," with Edith Roberts as his co-star and a cast including William Mack, James Doyle and George MacQuarrie.

First Church Martyr Is Topic of Lecture

Stephen, the first martyr of the church, was the topic of a lecture by Rev. Keith L. Brooks of Eagle Rock yesterday morning in the council room of the city hall to the Men's Brotherhood.

"Stephen is one of the most beautiful characters in the Bible," he exclaimed. "We have the story of but one day of his life, the last day, yet it is a remarkable picture. He approached in character and conduct Jesus in many ways. Like Jesus, he was a spirit-filled man of power, yet was maligned, hated and murdered, and his bitterest opposition was from men who had a form of religion.

"We read that the enemies of the Gospel were not able to resist the wisdom and spirit by which Stephen spoke, so they bribed men to testify that Stephen had spoken blasphemous words against Moses.

roads. The entire town is under water. The town today was under partial martial law. Fifty members of the American Legion are patrolling the streets to prevent vandalism and looting.

At Burlington, Kan., the Neosho river this morning was twenty-four feet above low water mark, four feet above flood stage and continued to rise approximately an inch an hour. Hundreds of acres of wheat, corn, alfalfa and other crops were under water.

Thousands Homeless

WICHITA, Kan., June 11.—Danger point along the Kansas flood line early today had shifted, to the extreme southern edge of the state where Winfield and Arkansas City, in Cowley county, were inundated with heavy loss of life and property.

Already it is estimated $5,000,000 worth of damage has been suffered by cities along the route of the Arkansas river. At least 5,000 persons have been made homeless, 3,000 of whom are at Arkansas City. The latter point has suffered especially heavy loss and an appeal for half a million dollars for the flood sufferers, has been asked for by A. J. McIntosh, mayor. Arkansas City lies at the junction of the Walnut and Arkansas rivers, both of which are on a rampage.

Five persons were reported dead at Winfield and Arkansas City. The drainage canal through the eastern portion of Wichita did much damage, driving hundreds from their homes. It receded yesterday, but was reported as being not fully under control yet.

and God. These religious leaders were very zealous for law, so they hired fellows to break it. Men, who had just pocketed a bribe arose in the defense of orthodoxy. Such men are not very good material for defending the truth."

Only 193,881 veterans of the Civil War survive.

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

Other Planets Hold Inhabitants, Is Claim

What the Bible has to say on the question whether there are other inhabited worlds besides our own, was the theme of a discourse by Rev. Philip Knox of Long Beach, at the Glendale Seventh-day Adventist church on North Isabel street Sunday evening. Rev. Knox has a good knowledge of astronomy and illustrated the points of his discourse by stereoscopic pictures.

"The Bible tells us," he said, "that God formed the earth and made it, and that He created it not in vain. He formed it to be inhabited." Isa. 45:18. "Our earth is but a speck in the great universe of God, composed of countless millions of suns with their attendant planets, and is it conceivable," he asked, "that the God who made this little world of ours to be inhabited, would leave all these other worlds untenanted?" Turning to the book of Job, Rev. Knox quoted a text which says that on one occasion when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, Satan came also among them; and when God asked him from whence he came, Satan replied that he came "from going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." Ch. 1, v. 6, 7. Satan, because he had overcome Adam, came to this assembly in Adam's place.

"Adam is called in the Bible 'the son of God,' and was made to stand at the head of the human family, and the other 'sons of God' who came to present themselves before Him, were beings created to stand at the head of the inhabitants of other worlds. It was no lie that Satan spoke to Christ when at the temptation on the mount, he pointed to the kingdoms of the world and declared that they belonged to him, but when Christ overcame Satan by His death and resurrection, he became the second Adam, and Satan could no longer appear in the assembly of the sons of God.

"Quotations were given from Prof. Lewis of the U. S. Naval Observatory, Garrett P. Serviss, and Prof. Adams of the observatory on Mt. Wilson, all of whom affirmed that astronomical research had revealed nothing to forbid the idea that the universe was filled with life. Prof. Serviss says that the heavens viewed at night, "give one an impression of the universality of intelligence." The universe, Rev. Knox affirmed in conclusion, revolves about the throne of God.

Pastor Points Path to Harmony With God

Two great sources of human misery, according to the sermon last night at the Central Christian church, are ignorance and selfishness.

"Ignorance, fearful and black and bloody, has stood in the way of all good," exclaimed Rev. C. A. Cole. "It has made men the victims of fear and superstition, of want and famine and pestilence, while lacking the numerous good things nature was waiting to bestow.

"Selfishness, grim and terrible and gruesome, has made men the victims of one another by war, oppression, slavery and a thousand other wrongs. Notwithstanding all his wrongs at the hands of others, it has made man his own worst enemy.

"These two great dragons on the progress of the race are related vitally and fundamentally to the question, 'Is the World Growing Better?'"

"Selfishness can never be dethroned till love is enthroned. A new spirit is abroad. 'Am I my brother's keeper' is no longer a byword and sneer.

"Knowledge and science bring man in harmony with God's methods."

Lectures on Birds At Church Services

Children's Day was observed with appropriate exercises at the Casa Verdugo M. E. church Sunday morning, during the regular hour of the Sunday school. A program of music and recitations was presented, with members of each class taking part. Professor Alfred Cookman delivered an interesting lecture, "The Bird Children's Day."

Professor Cookman was the speaker at the morning church service, taking as the subject of a nature sermon, "The Mother Instinct Among Birds." The choir rendered the anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord," and Martha Jones sang a Children's Day solo, "I Know a Day."

OCCULT SCIENCE

Ocult science services were held yesterday afternoon and evening at 1515 South Brand boulevard in the Chamber of Commerce hall. The lecture in the evening was delivered by Rev. Jennie McHenry of Los Angeles.

Special Flag Day exercises were held yesterday morning at the Central Avenue Methodist church. Members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. heard the sermon by Dr. V. Hunter Brink with special interest.

Wolverine, timber wolf and lynx depend on muskrat and rabbit for food.

Friendship of Jesus Is Werlein's Topic

The services at the Broadway Methodist church yesterday were attended by the largest congregation since its organization.

An interesting feature was the announcement of a picnic to be given by the membership to their friends on June 26 at Brookside park. Various committees were announced, and a general good time is assured. Full details and program will be announced next Sunday.

The sermon was by Rev. Dr. H. S. Werlein, presiding elder of the Los Angeles district. His subject was "The Friendship of Jesus." Text, John 15:13: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." In terms most eloquent Dr. Werlein paid tribute to the beautiful friendship existing between David and Jonathan, Damon and Pythias, and others, but even these do not compare to the friendship of Jesus with his friends. It is not only for His friends, but for His enemies as well. It is fortunate for us that we have loyal, loving friends, but not until we have found Jesus Christ have we come in touch with the one, true friend. In closing, Dr. Werlein made a strong appeal to his audience to accept the friendship of Jesus, saying, "I imagine the very first words spoken by a redeemed being after passing from this life and on entering the heavenly world will be, 'Jesus, Jesus! Saviour! Helper! Friend.'" It was a comforting and inspiring message, and made a feeling impression on his interested listeners.

A. T. Whitteker sang most beautifully, "Jesus is My Friend." At the close of the service Dr. Werlein held the third quarterly conference. The affairs of the church were found to be in a most satisfactory condition, and Dr. Werlein commented on the remarkable growth and bright prospects of the new organization.

Knowledge of Evil Makes Men Sinners

"Knowledge of Evil" was the subject of the sermon last night at the Tropic Presbyterian church. "The desire for knowledge is universal," remarked Dr. James F. Winnard. "Many are the lives that have been sacrificed on the altar of that desire. Young men and mature manhood, small boys and old age all join the great quest for knowledge. Whether this knowledge is only of material things or whether it involves deep moral issues, the desire is always there.

"In regard to knowledge of evil, let me ask three questions: First, is there any advantage in it? Second, is there any danger in it? Third, is there any sin in it?"

"What does experience prove? No sooner does one have the knowledge of evil than he becomes a sinner and, if a sinner, a tempter. With the knowledge of evil it is impossible to regain that which was lost in gaining that knowledge. The more you know of evil, the less you are like God. 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.'"

Celebrate Flag Day At Methodist Church

Flag Day was celebrated at the Central Avenue Methodist church yesterday with the veterans of the G. A. R. and members of the Women's Relief Corps as the special guests.

The church was beautifully decorated with flags and flowers. Dr. Marple, director of the choir, presented a fine musical program. The choir numbers were "The Soldiers' Chorus," from "Tannhauser," and "America, the Beautiful." Special features were "The Sword of Bunker Hill," a solo by Robert Taylor, a veteran of the Civil war, well known and beloved by all Glendale, and "Consider and Hear Me" (Wooler), by Dr. Marple.

The pastor, Dr. V. Hunter Brink, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. At the Sunday school hour, Children's Day was observed by an interesting program presented by the members of the Sunday school.

Music Marks Service At First Methodist

"The Religion of the Upper Air" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Henry Rasmus, yesterday morning at the First Methodist church.

The music of the morning service included a duet offertory by Miss Isabelle Isgrig, Burbank, and Glen R. Dolberg of 206½ West Broadway, "O For the Wings of a Dove."

The evening service included a trio consisting of Dr. P. O. Lucas of 115 South Verdugo road, Miss Isgrig and Mr. Dolberg.

MELTING POT

"The Passing of the American Melting Pot" was the subject of an illustrated lecture by Rev. H. C. Mullen last night at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church.

Territory comprised in the republic of Austria has only eighteen glass factories, ten earthenware factories, and not one porcelain production plant.

Uses Darkest Clouds To Back Rainbows

"The Book of Judges marks the deepest depression and dejection in the Old Testament," remarked Rev. W. E. Edmonds yesterday morning at the Presbyterian church.

"The dark cloud following the conquest of Canaan was far deeper and denser than the one which preceded it," he continued. "God uses the darkest clouds as His background for rainbows of His most gracious manifestations. Some of the brightest exhibitions of God's grace have been in the face of the adversary's fierce onslaughts. Four and a half centuries of sin recorded in this book yet there are many beautiful incidents recorded.

"Othniel was Israel's first judge. By the power of the Holy Spirit he conquered the mighty monarch of Mesopotamia and secured for his land nearly half a century of freedom. God is preparing His grace for the present opportunity. He can fit them into their place in a moment and the world looks on in wonder.

"Deborah was the first example of a woman called to public leadership. What a glorious multitude of noble women have followed in her train. A great ministry in the church today is being done by women. They are the most potent moral force of the age. May we not pray that God will use more and more the high and holy ministry of women.

"Gideon was a man hiding behind the barn for fear of the Midianites. The Holy Spirit uses fit men. They may be weak but He does not want them to continue weak after He calls them. He does not want them to continue foolish after He comes to give them wisdom. He uses the foolishness of preaching but not the foolishness of preachers; He conquers by weak things, lamps, pitchers and trumpets but all the glory belongs to Him.

In Sampson the Holy Spirit is the source of physical strength. There is no more remarkable figure in the Bible than this sturdy giant of Timnah. His strength was entirely due to the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. He lost this strength the moment he opened his life to worldliness, with his head in the lap of Delilah. His strength was gone and he was like any other man.

"The test and proof of the Spirit filled life is separation and obedience. 'Come out from among them and be ye separate.' Such are in the world but not of it. Such is the blessed fullness of the Holy Spirit as unfolded in this ancient book of Judges. May God make real to every believer the power of the Holy Spirit with which he is endowed and lead him out into a large place of service for His name's sake."

Life of Barnabas Is Told in Kemp Sermon

Barnabas was an example of a valiant Christian, according to the sermon yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"Among the leaders of the apostolic church," said Rev. Philip K. Kemp, "Barnabas stands out a straightforward and honest follower of Jesus who lived his faith to the limit of his ability. He was not the personality or the influence of Peter or Paul but by the earnestness and sincerity of his life became a fit representative of his crucified Lord.

"He was a man of means, yet, at the request of the apostles, he sold his property and gave them the proceeds to distribute among the poor. Later on Paul tells how Barnabas was making his living by the labor of his hands. He gave abundantly of his substance and of his life. He could work in harmony with others and sought to make the spirit of love and peace prevail.

"The work of Christ cannot be done by violence but by the spirit of obedience and harmony. To live for Christ is to work for the coming of His Kingdom."

Scientist in Church Tells Nature Secrets

"Nature Day" was observed yesterday at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church. Prof. Alfred Cookman of 336 Pioneer drive spoke to the Sunday school on the topic "A Nature Study." Later he addressed the congregation during the morning service upon the subject, "The Mother Instinct Among Birds." Rev. J. C. Livingston spoke in the evening upon "Treasures that are Hidden in the Soil of the Field."

God Reveals Himself To Men in Nature

"How does God Reveal Himself to Men?" was the subject of inquiry yesterday morning at the First Lutheran church.

The text was taken from the third verse of the twenty-third chapter of Job: "Oh, that I knew where I might find Him."

"Men in all ages have raised this great question!" exclaimed Dr. H. C. Funk. "It is always propounded by the man who must be shown, who wants to be sure. He may say: 'I have never seen Him; I have never heard His voice; I have never felt the grasp of His hand.'"

"But the fact is that there are many more things in the universe that cannot be discerned by the sense of sight, or of hearing, or of feeling. We are existing in a wonderful world of invisible forces—but we are so sense-bound that the good Lord has an awful time getting into some of our souls.

"Who has ever seen or been able to comprehend the mighty power by which the sun, the moon and the stars are maintained in their orbit? Who has ever seen the mysterious force which we call electricity? No one has ever seen his own soul."

"Spirit is the great unseen power that controls the universe, for God Himself is a Spirit."

"It is true to say that God reveals Himself to men in nature. The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth forth His handiwork." For those who are spiritually-minded, every tree, every river and every rock speaks of God. But, alas! not all men are spiritually-minded, and a further revelation is necessary. Where do we find it? The answer is: In the Word of God."

Wild Man's Identity Will Be Solved Soon

BOULDER, Colo., June 11.—The identity of the "wild man of Boulder county" who has for the past year been terrorizing ranchers and causing the sheriff's office a great deal of trouble, is believed nearing a solution. Ralph Valentine, an aged miner residing in Nederland, informed the sheriff's office that he believed the man, who, for days, has puzzled the county authorities by his telephone calls, declaring a murder had been committed and that a "man with his skull crushed and two legs broken" was lying in a gulch nine miles from Boulder, was none other than "Crazy Jake" Turner, his old partner.

Residents who have seen this supposedly wild man described him as being ape-like in appearance, unkempt, bearded and with arms dragging almost to the ground.

Valentine, who has resided practically all his life in the mountains, will be employed by the district attorney's office and will start in search for "Wild Jake" today in the hope that the mystery will be cleared up.

VAN NUYS WINS FROM GLENDALE

Winter League Champions Get Revenge; Breaks Against Locals

Glendale went down to defeat yesterday afternoon at the hands of Van Nuys, the Winter League champs, to the tune of 7 to 4, before a record crowd of 800 fans.

The Van Nuys nine and their cohorts came here with the intention of avenging the defeat the locals gave them some weeks back—and they succeeded admirably.

The Glendale team put up a good, fighting game but all the breaks were against them and they lacked the wallop at the critical times, being unable to clout the ball when they had men on bases and hits would have meant runs.

Get Next to Slim
Slim Harris started hurling for the locals, but the visitors got to him in the third, and Manager Walt Helder finished, holding them in fairly good shape except in the sixth, when with three on bases Mr. Roundtree rolled a foxy two-base hit lazily over the third sack, all three runners scoring.

Frank Acosta, Glendale's star third-sacker, was the batting feature of yesterday's encounter. He knocked out a sizzling homer but as luck would have it, not a man was on base; and he also connected with two neat singles, out of four trips to the plate.

Still Have Chance
The locals still have a chance to regain first place but to do so they will have to win all four of the remaining games. They should start well on this ambitious schedule, when they tangle with the Zelzah baseballers, cellar entry, on the latter's grounds, this coming Sunday.

GENE SARAZEN
U.S. OPEN CHAMPION WHO IS COMPETING FOR THE BRITISH OPEN IN SCOTLAND

WALTER HAGEN
BRITISH OPEN TITLE HOLDER WHO, BY THE WAY, HAS BEEN SHOOTING GOLF THIS SPRING, HAS A FINE CHANCE OF REPEATING AT TROON, SCOTLAND, THIS WEEK

Our golfers have landed on enemy territory and this week they begin an assault on John Bull's favorite golf title, the British Open, to be played at Troon, Scotland, the home of golf.

Last year Walter Hagen beat the best field of grass-put players old John could muster, and for the first time a homebred American carried off the British title. If Walter can keep up the form of golf he has displayed all this spring, he should repeat the trick this year. For, in the past winter season it was a dull golfing month that said Hagen didn't break some golf course record in tournament play, and he won four out of five events that he entered.

If there is anyone who can be depended upon to bring home the bacon, it is the Detroit star, Hagen, might be called the Ty Cobb of golf. He possesses a magnetic personality. Wherever he is, on or off the links, he attracts the crowd. He's always smiling, full of confidence, risking anything on a chance and making good a majority of the time, doing the unexpected, daring, a quick thinker and a fighter.

Our very best pro's are in England. Sarazen, our national champion, while he has proved his calibre, is not the consistent all-around player that Hagen is. Gene is young; this is his first trip abroad, and it is impossible to tell how he will perform away from the home folks.

The tournament at Troon comprises the biggest list and the classic field of golfers who will compete in any tournament this summer. The British are out to win back the title, and our boys are just as determined to retain it—and that means some wonderful golf.

G. A. R. Men to Attend War Veterans' Assn.
T. M. Barrett, commander of the N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., accompanied by R. N. Taylor, adjutant, and Rev. C. R. Norton, chaplain, will leave tomorrow for the Pacific Palisades at Santa Monica, to attend the annual camp of the War Veterans' association of Southern California.

This organization includes veterans of all American wars, and they will convene this year from Tuesday, June 12, to Friday, June 22. The beach camp is known as Camp Heffelfinger.

Commander Barrett and Adjutant Clark are members of the association council.

Woman Injured When Car and Bus Crash
Mrs. Mary E. Turner of 449 North Virgil street, Los Angeles, received bruises about 7 o'clock last night in a collision on San Fernando road near Brand boulevard, between a bus of the Original Stage Line, driven by H. R. Bybee of Los Angeles, and a touring car driven by D. A. Herron of Redley. The bus swerved in front of the private machine to avoid a bad place in the road. Mrs. Turner was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, where her bruises were bandaged.

Glendale Pin Artists Take Three Straight From Orange Co. Five

The Anaheim Elks who went up against the bowling team from the Glendale lodge last Friday night overmatched themselves badly, losing three straight games to the local pin artists by a wide margin. The Southland, will be the principal speaker of the evening, and his address is expected to have an important bearing on the activities of the men who are to carry on the work of the campaign, embodying, as it will, the experience gained in numerous other campaigns of a similar nature and an intimate knowledge of the needs for close team work in community activity in Southern California.

Another period of community singing, led by Mr. Tucker, will come before the address of Mr. Farrell.

Ed Radke Chosen
Captain D. Ripley Jackson, who had been selected to act as major of one of the teams, has resigned from the position, as the press of his official and other duties is so great that he would have been unable to devote the necessary time to the work. His place has been taken by Ed N. Radke, who, with the board of directors is now choosing the men who are to act as captains of the nine groups who will form his division. The directors were in session for two hours this morning making the selections of the men who will captain and who will also form the members of the various teams, and immediately after their meeting they proceeded to call on each of the men selected to insure their co-operation in the campaign and to instill in them the spirit of enthusiasm that is animating every member of the board.

By arrangements made with the managers of both local theatres, slides are being shown at every performance, urging the participation of everyone in the city in the campaign. One slide reads "Don't watch Glendale grow: Help it grow: Join the Chamber of Commerce," and the other says "The Chamber of Commerce is an orchard, not a museum. This is a Growing campaign. Join the Chamber of Commerce."

The response to the requests made by the directors for the assistance of local business men in the campaign has been most encouraging, and it is the firm conviction that the campaign will result in a striking success, not only from the viewpoint of adding the required number of new members, but in instilling the spirit of co-operation that is an absolute essential in the continued work of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID MARTHA BARNETT

where children could be brought into the Sabbath school; and now she has been saved by the blood of the lamb and swept by the pearly gates. Surely, the angels must have paused to honor this sainted woman, "a part of the high tribute paid by Rev. Norton."

Rev. Soper introduced the Rev. W. H. Evans, pastor of the Newhall Presbyterian church, who knew Mrs. Barnett as a war mother while she was living with her brother H. Clay Needham, in the years of 1917 and 1918. His was a tribute to the motherhood of those who served, for she had a son "over there."

Martha Needham was born in Kentucky, according to Rev. Soper, and educated at DePaul university in Greencastle, Indiana, where she met her husband, George W. Barnett, who was a minister in the Methodist church.

In 1890 the family came to California where the Rev. Mr. Barnett died. Accepting the responsibility of educating her family,

A charge of reckless driving was filed against Cosmos Nardone of 2365 Riverside Drive shortly after midnight Saturday at the Glendale police department. He was arrested on Verdugo Road by Officers Louis Nunn and W. W. Hedrick and lodged in a cell at No. 1 day station. About 10 a. m. Sunday he was released after his brother, A. M. Nardone, had deposited $300 bail for his appearance in court this morning. Judge F. H. Lowe fined him $50, which he paid.

Industrial Subdivision To Be Developed West Of S. P. Railroad At Broadway

DEVELOPMENT of a forty-two acre industrial subdivision, just west of the Southern Pacific railroad at Broadway, Glendale, is announced today by a local syndicate which will expend $50,000 in the improvement of the Peverly property which was purchased last week through the T. W. Watson agency. Members of the syndicate are W. L. Tracy, Harry G. MacBain, T. W. Watson, W. H. Campbell and Harry E. Hall, practically all of whom are well known in Glendale business circles.

Grading, street work, installing of a water system and the laying of railroad drill tracks will commence at once, according to T. W. Watson, former city manager and well-known real estate dealer, who is representing his associates in the enterprise.

The tract will be subdivided into lots 50 by 250 feet, although several larger factory sites will be reserved. Upwards of 100 industrial concerns eventually will be located in this West Glendale property, it is predicted. Mr. Watson gives the following description of the improvement:

"This property lies just west and bordering on the Southern Pacific main line valley and coast route, north of the westerly extension of Broadway, Glendale, with about 1400 feet frontage on the railroad right of way. The drill tracks for switching will be extended through property, each about 1700 feet in length, dividing into four rows the industrial sites.

Streets will be extended around the property and a main thoroughfare through the center, giving each site street frontage as well as a private railroad switch—two factors essential to industrial concerns.

"Broadway will be extended along the south line of the property as an extension of Broadway in Glendale, bringing Riverside drive, across the Los Angeles river, within 1000 feet of its terminus.

"It is to be hoped that means may be found to connect San Fernando road and Riverside drive by a bridge across the river.

Big Aid to City
"This improvement," points out Mr. Watson, "will give those portions of Los Angeles lying east of Glendale, as well as Pasadena and adjacent community, the most direct access to Griffith park possible. It also will provide a lateral with Riverside drive which is primarily planned to relieve the heavy traffic on San Fernando road.

"This industrial subdivision," concludes Mr. Watson, "means a great deal more to Glendale than

MUSIC STUDENTS STAGE PAGEANT

Nineteen Centuries of Art
Revealed in Symphony
At Club House

A pageant of colorful music was presented Saturday night at the Tuesday Afternoon Club auditorium, given by the pupils of Pearl G. Curran and Hazel Linkogel. The history of the march of music, with its ever changing periods, through the past nineteen centuries, portrayed by costume and music was a uniquely beautiful event in the musical circles of Glendale.

Music is the highest expression of a race, or a civilization, and the prologue was introduced by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery who cited the great effect of music on all generations and the manner in which the music of the period expressed the thoughts and culture of the people. The best in music and art was used for thousands of years after the birth of Christ to bring the European nations from pagan to Christian belief, the monks doing much toward establishing the music system we use today. Roger Early, a diminutive monk, in brown cassock, opened the musical program of playing a strain from the most ancient piece of music in existence, of monastic origin. The troubadour melody was illustrated by Herbert Howeth, as a picturesque gallant wandering from castle to castle through southern France and Spain.

The Folk Period was illustrated by four little maids, who played samples of the folk melodies of different lands. Betty Thompson made a quaint little Dutch girl as she played "In Holland Stands a House"; Isabel Elliott, the Scotch lassie, played the Bluebells of Scotland; Mary Blue, the Russian peasant, and Fern Johnson, the little French maid, played melodies from the early songs of these lands.

Classical Masters
The Classic Period, when, with the age of formal manners and formal dressing, music went through a period of equally formal thought, produced some of the greatest masters. Bach (1685-1750), the earliest of the formal composers, was illustrated by Lois Keeley, dressed as one of Bach's twenty children, as she played his "Musette." Anna Ratsan, in quaint Seventeenth century costume, played Handel's "Passe-caglia"; Ruth Houle, looking like a picture sketched from an old painting, played Mozart's "Sonata in F Major"; Louise Emerick, who played Beethoven's "Rondo in C Major," illustrated the gradual coming of the romantic music.

Maxine Weinberg and Alex Maximilian, two small violin artists, played a duet by Pleyel, with Daniel Hawlish at the piano, thus closing the classic period. The Romantic Period beginning early in the nineteenth century showed more freedom in musical thought. Schumann's "Knecht Ruprecht (Santa Claus) received splendid interpretation as played by Francis Hawlish. Chopin was illustrated by Lura Baldwin in a quaint 1830 gown; Heller's "Intermezzo" was played by Margaret Thompson, Ravina's "Petite Bolero" by Harmon Bunting, a young Spanish gallant; Burlitt's Hunting Song, by Louise Stecker was followed by Jenezo in "E major," splendidly handled by little Beatrice Smith.

Four Seasons
The Modern Period reflects the best that the twentieth century can offer artistically. The four seasons of the year were illustrated by the works of modern musicians. Grieg's "Spring" received a beautiful interpretation by Maxine Heasley, "Summer Pleasures" by Von Koss, by Ida-mae Campbell; "Butterflies," Grant-Schaefer, by Mildred Randolph, and "June-Bug Lullaby," Hewitt, by June Spear, were followed by Cecil Burleigh's "Deep River," a violin solo by Hazel Linkogel, with Henry Grace at the piano. Vera Lockwood, Myrl Linkogel and Sally Heasley were three dainty fairies, who played selections by Pendleton, Gaynor and Farrar. Cleone Barton played a merry tune of Wolf's and Daniel Hawlish and Otis Goettl selections by Poldini and Fril, of a truly magical caliber.

Autumn, the season of falling leaves, was illustrated by Ethel Barton with the song poem by that name by Chaminade. "Under the Leaves" by Thome was played by Helen Houle; "The Ghost in the Chimney," Killack, played by Ella May, a dainty little Halloween spirit, "The Witches' Dance" by MacDowell, was played by Henry Grace.

Winter having arrived, Evelyn Plunkett, a white snow-fairy, played Anthony's "A Winter Tale" and Evelyn Harris, "Snow Flurry," by Marshall-Loepke. The final number, the "Toy Symphony," was a triumph for Hazel Linkogel. In quaint 18th century costumes the twenty-five members of the orchestra waited the arrival of their leader. He appeared in the black court costume of the 1780's with powdered wig and was soon recognized to be Miss Linkogel, herself, as with a flourish of bows the twelve little violinists quivered in air and broke forth in an early air of Haydn's, the father of symphony.

Members of Symphony

TWO WOMEN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Liquor Is Cause of Fatal
Accident, Claim; Little Known of Victims

Moonshine liquor is believed to have been responsible for the automobile accident which resulted in the death of two men early Saturday night in Glendale. By the irony of fate, the fatal accident occurred at the northeast corner of Grand View Memorial park. Its victims were James Ponsford, of 606 1/2 East Fifth street, Los Angeles, and Emmanuel Gar-side, of the same address, who arrived recently from Abilene, Tex.

At the intersection of Grand View and Kenneth roads, about 6 o'clock Saturday night, the roadster containing the two men overturned. A telephone call was dispatched by some one in a nearby house, and Officer A. D. Armer hurried to the scene in the police car.

Dies En Route
This was being used to transport Mr. Garside to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. He died en route, and was taken to the mortuary of Kiefer & Eyerick instead.

Mr. Ponsford was taken from the scene of the accident in the ambulance of Kiefer & Eyerick to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, where he died shortly after midnight.

Little is known of the two men beyond the fact that they were both bricklayers. They are believed to have been transients in Los Angeles.

Two pints of whiskey were found in the car. It was seized as evidence of the coroner's jury. Witnesses to the accident, Clarence B. Allen, of 2210 Ewing street, Edendale, and R. C. McManus, of 2167 Duane street, Edendale, stated that the two men were intoxicated.

Protection of Timber From Fire Required

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—State Forester M. B. Pratt announces that beginning with August 17 all pine timber land owners must either maintain a fire-fighting organization to protect their timber or contribute toward the support of the state fire patrol. Pratt's order was issued under authorization of Senate Bill 655, recently signed by the governor.

In order to relieve the owners of timbered property from being forced to organize individual patrols at heavy cost, Pratt declared that the state will undertake the fire-prevention work for a charge not to exceed 3 cents an acre per year. The compulsory fire protection measure, which had the backing of the lumber interests, applies only to pine forests.

The state forester also announces the appointment of two additional forest rangers for the coming season. W. F. Sharp of Nevada City will be detailed to guard forests in Nevada county and W. J. Mufford of Whitmore will patrol Burney Falls Park and the eastern section of Shasta county.

Call State Meeting Over Child Welfare

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—Announcement was made today by the state board of health that the bureau of child hygiene will hold a conference on maternal and child welfare in the auditorium of Stanford University Medical school, San Francisco, July 16-21. Miss Marie Phelan, supervising public health nurse of the Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., will address the conference.

Meat Is Condemned By State Inspector

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—A total of 421,631 pounds of meat was condemned by meat inspectors of the California department of agriculture during 1922 as unfit for food, according to a report made public by Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief of the division of animal industry. Cattle condemned during the year for tuberculosis numbered 520.

SURPLUS MATERIALS

More than $150,000,000 worth of surplus war materials have been distributed by Uncle Sam all over the country to be used in the construction and maintenance of highways.

Mrs. Curran and Miss Linkogel are much to be congratulated on the beauty and finish of the children's pageant. It has added much to the happy memories of all the delightful audience and proved one of the most worthwhile and instructive of the "Piano-fund" programs, yet produced under the auspices of the Tuesday Afternoon Club.

Attractions? Glendale Has Them—We'll Tell Th' World! And To Suit Everyone, Too

By GIL A. COWAN

HOT DOG! Summer is come if Sunday's sunshine is any criterion of the three months hereafter. And with it comes the lure of camping out or basking on the beach. It is about time, too, for the "high fog" of the past few days has been quite unusual and more than enough of the kind of weather what makes us sick, if you will pardon the expressive language. California's all year 'round climate is an attraction worth traveling many miles to endure or enjoy, depending on your viewpoint. When it is salubrious in Glendale, it is nothing else but. Glorious? We'll tell the world, and, while we're a writing, we'll tell something else besides.

Glendale is one of the most interesting spots, if you only knew it—and most of us know it or we wouldn't be here. The big idea is to make others realize what we have. People is the principal thing to be found in Glendale, for it is a city of homes. Then there are schools, just enough to go round, usually, and always building more.

Churches Are Good "Ads"
There are churches here, too, that would satisfy about everyone with religion and a lot more who have yet to get it, although most Glendale folks give to all of 'em for the beautiful edifices on every hand are the best advertising mediums we know of, outside of The Glendale Evening News.

Hardly a month passes without a church being dedicated, or added to, or started, or something. We could discuss at length the inspiring sights the buildings offer, but the best way to appreciate them is to "go see for yourself." Don't just look at 'em. Look in them, as well.

As for other attractions, Glendale and vicinity are not lacking. It has theatres, clubhouses, recreation facilities and entertainments enough to keep the people here busy without any self-starters or the like. It is just one grand place at which to be.

Depot, Postoffice to Be Subjects at Meet

The West Glendale Improvement association will meet Tuesday, June 12, at 8 p. m., in the Columbus Avenue school, at the corner of Doran and Columbus, to discuss the Southern Pacific depot and the location of a larger post-office, according to an announcement made this morning by R. Streit, president of the association.

Other important matters will also be brought up, and it is desired that all the members attend. Visitors will also be welcome to hear the discussions.

Governor Richardson Is Not Superstitious

SACRAMENTO, June 11.—The gubernatorial sanctum, workshop of California's highest state official, has lost its identity. Number 7, which for the past quarter of a century has stood in black relief on the gubernatorial door, is supplanted.

In place of the venerable and aristocratic No. 7, the door of the governor's office now carries numerals generally associated with things superstitious—113. The change was occasioned by the renumbering of the entire capitol.

BUSINESS CLUB TO HOLD SESSION

Miss Cora Wilson to Give Address at Gathering of Women Tuesday

A discussion of re-organization of vocational work by the vocational committee of the Los Angeles county federation of business women's clubs, will be given tomorrow night by Miss Cora Wilson, chairman of that committee, at the meeting of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club at the Glendale Commercial school, at 224 South Brand boulevard.

Special guests will be members of the Burbank Business and Professional Women's club.

Another guest will be R. Ernest Tucker, who will speak on the co-operation possible between the club and the Community Service. Action will be taken on naming a committee to arrange for excursions and hikes for the club during the summer.

Committee Members

Another interesting part of the program will be the announcement of committee members by the chairman. There will be committee members named by Mrs. Loretta Williams, chairman of ways and means; Julia Moniot, hospitality; Dr. Elizabeth Early, program; Miss Helen Tupper, friendship; Miss Ethel Riddell, publication; Miss Alice McCoy, legislative.

The club is planning for a dinner Tuesday night, June 26, at the Harriett Mae tea room. Following the dinner there will be a program of music and an address by a well-known speaker. From the tea room the company will go to the club headquarters for card games.

Franklin Farnum Faces Drunkennes Charge

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Farnum of 5212 1/2 Melrose street, Hollywood, spent the wee hours Sunday morning in the custody of the Glendale police department.

They were arrested about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning by Officers Louis Nunn, W. W. Hedrick and A. D. Armer at the intersection of Central avenue and Oak street. Mr. Farnum was charged with being intoxicated and Mrs. Farnum was charged with reckless driving.

Mr. Farnum resisted arrest and considerable battle ensued before he was locked in a cell at Fire Station No. 1. Later in the morning he was released on $500 cash bail. He denied that he is an actor.

Mrs. Farnum was released upon her own recognizance.

TODAY—Should Students Marry; Ohio Colleges Differ.
TOMORROW—California Crime Control; the New Commission's Work, by William G. Cayce, Los Angeles correspondent.

By WILLIAM J. HUSKE
For International News Service

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The fact that love laughs at college rules, in just the same way that the little blind god defies locksmiths, is frankly recognized by seven out of twelve Ohio colleges. At these institutions the undergraduate, man or woman, may continue to graduation, even though they yield to Cupid and marry during their college course.

At five Ohio institutions of high learning, however, the student who bows down to the love god and marries must quit school at once. "Love and study do not make a good combination," sums up the views of heads of the institutions.

At Western Reserve University, Cleveland, including the College for Women; Ohio State University, Columbus; Ohio University, Athens; Akron Municipal University, Akron; Wittenberg College, Springfield, and Ohio Northern University, Ada, students may continue their studies after marriage.

At Miami University, Oxford; Western College for Women, Oxford; Oberlin College, Oberlin; Oxford College, Oxford, and Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, the student who marries is thereby automatically dropped from his or her classes.

"Marriages of undergraduates has never been a problem at Western Reserve," Dean W. G. Leutner of Adelbert College said. "I believe there are no married students now, with the exception of some of the older men who were married before they came here."

"Whether marriage of the students is desirable or not depends entirely on the student. To some men marriage wouldn't make the slightest difference. The interests of others might be so sidetracked that they couldn't keep up with their studies."

"We have no rule against marriages, but married or single, out the student goes, if he doesn't keep up with his work."

"We do not exclude married women, whether they are married before they come or are married while in school," said Dean Helen M. Smith of the College for Women, Western Reserve University. "Of course, we do not encourage students to marry. Our only test is their ability to do their college work."

Inasmuch as the state encourages marriages as "conditions to good citizenship," said Dr. W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State University, "there is no reason why a state university should forbid marriages among its undergraduates. Private schools may not favor marriage. Although popular sentiment may not favor marriage for students, I am not so sure that

On the other hand, Oberlin College, at Oberlin, Ohio, one of the leading congregational colleges of the United States, places a strict ban upon marriages among undergraduates. The same holds true of Miami University, Oxford College and the Western College for Women, all located in the little town of Oxford, Ohio.

"Oberlin has had a ruling forbidding marriages as long as I can remember," said Dean C. N. Cole. "Matrimony distracts students from their work. Every year we have one or two couples who marry and then realize they need more education. We cannot let them back into Oberlin, but we do everything possible to get them into other schools."

Oberlin was the first college in the United States to adopt co-education, having admitted women on the same terms as men since its foundation in 1832.

While Wittenberg College, at Springfield, Ohio, believes marriages between undergraduates should be discouraged, there is no rule on the subject, according to Dr. R. E. Tulloss, the president.

"We have found from observation," he said, "that results of marriages among students are sometimes good and sometimes bad. I oppose undergraduate marriages and discourage them as strongly as possible."

"Love-making and scholarship do not travel hand in hand," in the opinion of Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Ohio, the leading Methodist educational institution in the state. "Marriages of undergraduates has never been a problem here, for the reason that whenever students have married one or the other has dropped out." Dr. Hoffman also opposes engagements of undergraduates.

On the other hand, Dr. Edwin Smith, president of Ohio Northern University, at Ada, which boasts as graduates both Ohio senators, is an advocate of student marriages. "I am in favor of student marriages," he declared. "However, I believe it best not to marry until the senior year. I don't believe the mere fact of marriage impairs scholarship."

This view is now universal at Ohio Northern nevertheless, as Professor Martell Davis, head of the department of modern languages, pointedly inquires: "How can a young man or woman come into class and do justice to his or her work after spending the night walking the floor with the baby?"

"The situation takes care of itself," Dean A. L. Spanton said. "If a student marries it usually means the bridegroom must drop out of college and get a job to support his wife. If low scholarship follows the student is dropped from the rolls, anyway."

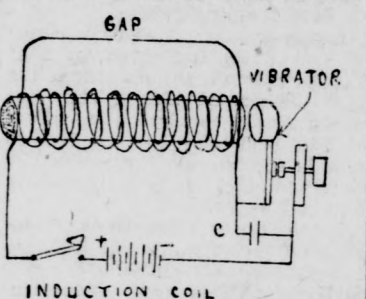

RADIO

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

COURSE IN RADIO—CHAPTER 10

In the preceding lesson you were asked what would happen if a source of alternating current were used? Did you figure it out? An alternating current falls to zero a certain number of times each second, and if the current falls to zero the magnetic field must collapse with it and rise with it when the current builds up again. It rises and falls like the waves of the ocean. It is constant in motion, whereas the magnetic lines of force produced by direct current are at rest after they are once produced. Therefore, if there is an alternating magnetic field about the little solenoid, the larger solenoid will be constantly cut by these magnetic lines of force and a current will be generated. This is the principal electrical transformation as seen in transformers used for reducing high-voltage current for our home lighting in the cities. These transformers are usually mounted on telegraph poles in the alleys. An alternating or pulsating current is required for transformers.

You may say: "But I use dry cells to operate my spark coil and the dry cells give direct current." True, but your spark coil has a vibrator or interrupter, which converts the direct current to one of interrupted or pulsating current. Referring to Figure 4 of the last lesson: The small coil would be known as the primary and the larger one as the secondary. The primary contains the original current, the secondary the induced or transformed current.

The illustration shows a spark, or induction coil, which was used in early radio experiments by Marconi. It consists of primary and secondary coils, iron wire core, key, batteries, interrupter and fixed condenser. The induction coil is a device by which extremely high voltages may be produced. If you have ever been shocked by one of these spark coils on an automobile you know they have some kick to them, but not serious.

The heavy lines on the core consist of the primary winding, while the lighter ones are the secondary, one coil being wound over the other, but in practice they are insulated from one another. The primary consists of the heavy winding, through the vibrator, battery and key. Tracing this from one side of the battery we find it goes through the key to the winding on the core, then through the vibrator and back to the battery. When the key is closed the iron core automatically becomes a powerful magnet and draws the vibrator to it and away from the contact point, and this opens the circuit. When the circuit is open the magnetic field collapses, the iron core losing its magnetism and the vibrator goes back to the contact point when the circuit is completed again and it is drawn to the core and breaks the circuit again. The vibrator is made of spring steel and when the key is held down it vibrates back and forth many times a second. This making and breaking of the circuit causes a rise and fall of the magnetic lines of force and induces a current in the secondary coil, which, if connected to any device, such as a spark gap, will deliver a high voltage across it. The fixed condenser placed across the vibrator is to prevent it from burning up rapidly, due to self-induction, which may be defined as that property of a circuit which tends to prevent any change in the strength of a current flowing through it. The field about any one turn in a solenoid acts through the adjacent turns, inducing a current which is opposite, or in the same direction as the original current, depending whether the induced current is increasing or decreasing in value.

A current of extremely high voltage is produced in the second coil which breaks down the resistance of the spark gap and flows across it in a brilliant spark. The average spark coil produces a voltage from 5000 to 35,000. The primary coil is large wire and the secondary small wire and of very many turns.

In transforming current by the use of the induction coil we lose energy. We can increase the voltage, but the current falls. If we put twenty-five watts in the primary we get that amount out from the secondary, even though we get the very high voltage, the current would be only a fraction.

The voltage of the secondary is easily calculated if we know the number of turns or the ratio between primary and secondary, and the voltage of the primary. Example: 6000, equals turns in the primary, 120 turns in the secondary, 120 volts of secondary and six volts of primary.

6000 is to 120 as X is to 6
120 X = 36,000
X = 300

A loud speaker is not an amplifier. Loud speakers that do increase the strength of signals have power amplifiers in them. Nearly 100 per cent of radio troubles is not knowing how to tune. Turning the dials at random is only a hit-and-miss way. When everything else has been inspected for trouble, try a new grid leak.

BILLY WILKERS

BY FRANCES TREGLO MONTGOMERY

"Some day," said Button, after Billy had explained about the Panama canal, "when North America is cut loose there will come a big wind that will blow South America across the ocean and stick it up against Africa, which is on the other side of the Atlantic. Then the United States of America would be made she ever built a canal."

"Oh Button, you are too funny. You make me laugh. What do you think an island is, anyway? Just a big piece as you call it, instead of a little one."

"My dear fellow, the whole western coast of North and South America is presently made up of a long mountain range. And all the isthmus of Panama is the top of these mountains sticking up out of the sea. So you see South America could not very well float off when it is a solid mountain in stead of a piece of land floating on top of the water."

"Why, of course! I might have known that, but I never before gave it a thought," replied Button.

"Gee, but won't the water roll and tumble when it first runs in the canal?" said Stubby. "How are they going to keep it out until they get their canal dug and all ready for the water to go in?" asked Stubby.

"They will keep the openings closed until they get the canal dug and then will build locks and let the water in slowly," explained Billy.

"I should think your head would burst when you butt anything Billy, it is stuffed so full of school book knowledge," said Button.

"What do the people look like who live on the isthmus, and what do they do for a living?"

"The natives are very dark skinned, nearly black, and the heat makes them so lazy and indolent that they never amount to much. You see, the isthmus of Panama lies within the Torrid zone, which is the hottest place on earth because the sun's rays fall directly upon it. All the people living in hot countries have dark, oily skins, as this kind does not tan or feel the heat like a fine, dry white skin. When white-skinned people go to live in hot countries, they have to oil their skins to keep them from blistering, and

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

BY HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WILD ROSE

Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, were out walking in the woods one day. The bunny rabbit gentleman was looking for an adventure, as he often did, and Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy was going to the store.

"I want to get some soap to wash the face of the clock," said Nurse Jane.

"How did the clock get its face dirty?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"Oh! when I was out of the room," explained Nurse Jane with a laugh, "the clock put its hands in the ink bottle and rubbed the black stuff all over its face. So I have to clean it now."

"That's a funny clock," chuckled Mr. Longears, and he was just going to hop on ahead, for he was in a hurry to find an adventure.

When, all of a sudden something seemed to grasp him by the coat-tails, something caught hold of the back of his neck and scratched him, and the rabbit uncle cried: "Oh, the Bob Cat must be after me!"

"Nothing of the sort!" laughed Nurse Jane. "You just jumped into a wild rose bush and the thorns on the bush caught your coat-tails and scratched you."

"Oh! is that all?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "But I am rather sadly scratched," he went on as he felt with one paw at the back of his neck. "My, how I am scratched!" he sighed. "Oh, dear!"

"It was a bad old wild rose bush!" declared Nurse Jane. "Do you want me to dig it up by the roots for scratching you, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Oh, thank you kindly," answered the bunny gentleman. "The rose bush, though it is a trifle wild, did not mean to scratch me. It would be a pity to tear it up. Let it stay. I'll go to Dr. Possum's office and get some court plaster for my scratches."

And, as Uncle Wiggily hopped away, the pink flowers on the wild rose bush blushed a little, and one of them said:

"It is very kind of you, Uncle Wiggily, not to blame us for your scratches. Really it was the wind that blew our branches and made the thorns catch you. Perhaps, some day, we may be able to do you a favor to make up for the scratches."

"Oh, pray don't mention it!" begged the bunny with a low and polite bow of his tall silk hat.

Then he hopped one way to find an adventure and Nurse Jane went along another way to the store to get some soap to wash the face of the clock.

Well, Uncle Wiggily had not taken more than forty-seven hops before he reached the home of Susie Littletail, the rabbit girl. And from inside the house came a sad voice, saying:

"Oh, dear! I want to go to Beekie Stubbins' party, but I don't want to go wearing that old white dress, mother!"

"It is the only party dress you have, Susie," said the voice of Mrs. Littletail, "and I am sorry we haven't money to buy you a new gown. I think your white dress will do very well."

"Oh, mother! I've worn it so often! The girls know every stitch of it and they'll make fun of me! Couldn't I have a new pink dress?" begged Susie.

"I'm sorry, my dear, but you can't," replied Mrs. Littletail a bit sadly, for she knew how disappointed Susie would be.

"Oh, dear! I do so much want a new pink dress!" cried the little rabbit girl.

"But you can't have it because we can't afford to buy it," explained Mrs. Littletail. And then Uncle Wiggily hopped into view, saying:

"Wait! Susie shall have a new pink dress, and it will not cost a penny! I'll get it for her."

"Oh, but I don't want you to spend your money!" objected Mrs. Littletail.

He reached the home of Susie Littletail.

"No money is going to be spent!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "Just wait here a minute. Quickly he hopped to the wild rose bush. 'Will you give me some of your petals to change Susie's white dress pink?' he asked.

"Yes, gladly!" whispered the wild roses. They showered Uncle Wiggily's tall hat full of lovely pink petals. Then the rabbit gentleman took some sticky gum from the pine tree and he and Mrs. Littletail fastened the pink petals all over Susie's plain white dress. And when they had finished there was the most beautiful party gown you can imagine!

"Oh, how lovely!" cried Susie. And when she wore her rose petal pink dress to the party all the other animal girls said: "Oh! and 'Ah!'"

So, you see, after all, it is a good thing to wash the face of the clock. And if the sugar bowl doesn't turn upside down when it tries to jump over the cup of tea, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Tippy's slide.

MARCHING WITH THE LEGION

MRS. B. M. MACE, Jr., of Davenport, Ia., is wearing the drill team uniform which will be proposed as a national dress of American Legion Auxiliary convention in San Francisco next fall. The uniform was designed and made by disabled veterans of the vocational school in Bellevue, Ia. The Davenport unit of the auxiliary has a drill team of forty members. Similar organizations will be formed by auxiliary units in many parts of the country.

A tourist park and camping site, under the direction of American Legion members of Gettysburg, Pa., will be opened there this summer. The park project was originally in the hands of city officials but was turned over to the legionnaires at their request. The city will provide forestation for the site and an adequate water supply. Legion members will erect buildings and other facilities necessary to care for the hundreds of tourists who visit Gettysburg during the year.

As sponsors of the boy scout troop composed of newboys in wear cool, wide brimmed hats to protect them from the sun. (Tomorrow you will hear more of wise Billy's geography lesson.)

TO HELEN
Helen, thy beauty is to me
Like those Nemean barks of yore,
That gently o'er a perfumed sea,
The weary, way-worn wanderer bore
To his own native shore.
On desperate seas long wont to roam,
Thy hyacinth hair, thy classic face,
Thy Naiad airs have brought me home
To the glory that was Greece,
And the grandeur that was Rome.

Lo! in you brilliant window-niche
How statue-like I see three stand:
The agate lamp within thy hand!
Ah, Psyche, from the regions
Which Are Holy-Land!

TODAY'S
Ad

Dolly Squires connected her washing machine with the socket of the electric light on the back porch, then went into the kitchen to press the button. The machine was rumbling and purring when she came out and she did her washing while she looked over the fields and down the country road. It may not be permissible in modern theory for housewives to sing at the arduous task of washing, but Dolly's voice rose above the noise of the machinery. Joe would be back in the morning, back from the city where he had gone with a trainload of cattle, and she would not have to stay alone any more. When night came Dolly always remembered the nearest neighbor was a half mile off and was frightened.

Down the country road in the starlight walked a tall and a short man. The tall man spoke earnestly, while the short one chuckled and nodded.

"It strikes me," interrupted the short man, "that for what a potential burglar, you are acting too flighty. You haven't got the nerve."

"If I was going to be a real burglar," the tall man insisted, "I would have the nerve. What I propose is burglary and, again, it isn't. It's a sort of triumph of home cooking over a weak man. Sit down, and we'll talk it over." They sat beside the road a stone's throw from the home of Dolly Squires.

"Look here, Ferd, you and me has been partners for some time and you never knew me to swipe anything, unless maybe a little fruit or vegetables what might have gone to rot. You ain't got no call to be naming me a burglar."

"You said," the little man ignored the injured tone, "you said you were going to crack that house tonight. I'll bet you haven't the nerve."

The tall man took hold of the other's collar and shook vigorously. Satisfied his partner was in a frame of mind to listen, he continued, emphasizing his points with repeated shakes.

"I ain't going to crack the house. What I am is a victim of the terribly pastry that a traveling gentleman gets in restaurants and jails. I pie for home cooking, and where am I going to get it? Handouts nowadays are nothing but bread. I want pie, who makes the best pies?" Short sentences and with each a gesture which rattled the other's teeth.

Lyonnaise Potatoes—Cut one pint of cold boiled potatoes into small dice and season with one-half teaspoon of salt and a pinch of pepper. Mince one small onion (there should be one heaping tablespoon of the minced onion) and fry in one tablespoon of drippings until a light brown. Add the diced potatoes and stir with a fork till they have absorbed the fat and are well mixed with the minced onion. Add one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley and serve at once. (One teaspoon of vinegar gives the potatoes a delicious flavor.)

Pila—Cook one-half of a medium-size onion in two tablespoons of butter for four minutes, then add one cup of washed rice, one teaspoon of salt and one pint each of canned beef broth and tomato juice (also canned if desired). Cover and let simmer till the rice is soft—about two hours—when the liquid will be absorbed. Just before serving, stir in two tablespoons of butter. (One cup of cold diced meat may be added if you have it.) If brown rice is used instead of the white rice in this recipe, the dish will be more nutritious.

Lamb Pasty—Have your butcher cut you three pounds of lamb from the neck. Have him cut it small, as for a stew. Roll these small pieces in flour and fry them in four tablespoons of butter or drippings, searing well on all sides. Then place them in a casserole (or any baking dish) and add three cups of boiling water, one teaspoon of salt, and a small piece of bay leaf; put on cover and let cook in a good oven for two hours. Remove bay leaf, add one tablespoon of tomato catsup, the juice from one large chopped onion, one cup of peas, and one and one-half cups of par-boiled, pared, diced potatoes, a little more water if necessary (to make about a cupful of gravy) and three tablespoons of flour. Mix well, then cover with crust made of baking powder biscuit dough. Return to the oven and bake till brown—about 20 minutes. If you use an oven thermometer (Fahrenheit), have the mercury at 500.

PRACTICAL AND MODISH COAT

This coat needs nothing more than its lovely material and clever lines to give it a foremost place among the season's modes. Cashmere duvetyne, heavy crepe, Poirette, peau de peche, and satin robe are suitable for its development. The fronts are underfaced and may be rolled with the convertible collar to form revers. Turn-back cuffs finish the kimono sleeves. Medium size requires 4 yards 36-inch or 3 1/2 yards 54-inch material.

Pictorial Review Coat No. 1559. Sizes 34 to 44 inches bust and 16 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

FASHION'S FLAIR FOR FRILLS

Nothing equals the youthful charm or the demure loveliness of a frilled frock. The recurrent vogue for white is responsible for this design in flat white crepe. The dress closes on the shoulders, and the kimono sleeves are also finished with frills. A belt of colorful ribbon which closes under a bouquet of artificial flowers defines the waistline. The edges of the frills on both skirt and sleeves are picoté. Medium size requires 5 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1538. Sizes 34 to 44 inches and 14 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

OWNING OR OWNED
Some friends of ours are having a wonderful time this spring because they have just come into possession of an automobile.

I fancy the husband would be surprised if he should see that statement.

He would say: "Why, I bought that automobile last September and used it all the fall. Why do you say we just came into possession of it?"

But I know the wife would understand perfectly.

An Ornament, Not a Utility
For this is what she said to me: "We are really enjoying our automobile this year. You know last year it was so new and shiny and lovely, and we were so afraid we would hurt it, that we didn't have much fun out of it. Those first two months we used to inspect it every time we took it out, and dust it off and look for scratches, and if we found a new scratch on it that just spoiled the day for Henry. He wouldn't take it out if it was rainy, or if it had been raining and was muddy; and if we were going somewhere and found an oily road we would turn back; and he never wanted to go off the main road because the little roads are apt to be dusty. He hated any narrow country road because once he was pushed over into the bushes and scratched the car terribly. And then one day in the late fall we got caught in a frightful storm and got the car all muddy, and when we had it washed the garage man scratched it and ruined some of the varnish by using too much soap."

So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. OWNING OR OWNED
When I saw it, I didn't mind so much myself, but I knew Henry would feel terribly. And what do you suppose he said? He felt badly at first, and then he just took a deep breath and said: "Well, I'm sorry it happened, but maybe it isn't such a misfortune, after all. We'll stop worrying about it now and enjoy it next spring, and maybe that will be just as good."

"And you like that way just as well?" I asked.

"Do!" he echoed. "I feel as though I never really owned a car before."

They didn't. The car owned them. And that's what I mean by their having just come into possession of a car.

It is always dangerous to care too much about any possession. It simply means that your fear of loss or harm to it is going to lessen your happiness and freedom.

I know a woman who has a wonderfully competent maid who gives her perfect food and service. She knows that maid could leave her at any time and get as good a position or better. And her life is dominated and restricted by the fear of losing that treasure.

If You Care Too Much
I know another woman who puts up with a comparatively incompetent maid because she says the maid cares more about staying than she does about keeping her hair and so she is never nervous about her. When the other woman boasts of her treasure she is not in the least envious. "I could get a treasure, too," she says, "if I were willing to give up my peace of mind."

It is a big thing to be big enough to dominate your possessions. Most of us are slaves to some of ours.

To be thrifty and careful about what one owns seems to be commendable. I hate the careless indifference that abuses and destroys a possession. Even if one has the money to buy another, that means that some of the Astringents are slightly drying preparations which draw up the pores of the skin and the muscles that age or illness has let sag and droop. Something astringent should be used every day by everyone, even when the skin is young and perfect, since it is always easier to prevent trouble than to cure it. Cold water is the best, either plain or slightly salty, and it should, like every astringent, be used after the complexion has been thoroughly cleansed.

But specially strong astringents will be needed for special purposes, for deep wrinkles, for instance. Here I advise the white of egg, beaten to a froth and mixed with its own amount of milk or water. One egg makes enough for several treatments. This astringent is very strong and should be spread over the face with the finger tips after the skin has been rubbed with cleansing cream and wiped dry. After thirty minutes, preferably spent lying down with the face relaxed, a thorough massage with a flesh-building cream should follow. And to end it most effectively a piece of ice should be rubbed over the face after the second cream has been wiped off.

This is also good for blackheads and coarse pores and the scars left by pimples. For blackheads, the face should be steamed five minutes, before the cleansing cream is used.

Here's a new formula for rosemary water, a mild astringent for general daily use: Take a generous handful of dried or fresh rosemary leaves and tops, tie in a muslin bag with a little weight attached, drop into a porcelain lined vessel with three pints of boiling water. Let it steep on the stove, covered, three to four hours. Remove, let it cool, then add one and a half ounces of rectified spirit. Half an hour later take out the rosemary. Keep it well corked in glass bottles. It is delicious to wipe over the face and arms after washing them.

Mrs. A.—You seek so much information that I cannot take the space to do it justice. Please send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I may mail you the formulas that best suit your case. In the meantime, always use a cream after you have had lemon juice on your skin.

Diet and Health
By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

who live on the bread, meat and potato diet, which does not include a sufficient amount of the necessary vitamins, may be suffering from latent scurvy and nerve disorders.

It is probable that many cases of sterility, abortion and the inability of mothers to nurse their babies, may be a direct result of the lack of vitamins in the food.

We know that this is true in animals. Stunted growth and malnutrition, infections, especially tuberculosis, have a fertile field.

Most of the vitamins are affected and some are destroyed by the action of heat, alkalis such as baking soda, and drying. The vitamins that are in solution of an acid such as in tomatoes and the citrus fruits are more stable; tomato and orange juice, lemons and raspberries keep most of the vitamins even when dried or canned.

These foods have the anti-scorbutic and the anti-neuritic vitamins in high concentration.

Holt and others have shown that when starches and sweets are increased in the diet of children the children do not thrive unless the vitamin-bearing foods are also increased. This may show there is either an increased demand created by the starches and sugars, or that they have some effect in destroying the vitamins.

And it is probable that children and adults who have a large amount of cane sugar and candy and other sweets suffer from a vitamin deficiency as well as from the fermentation of these foods and the unbalancing of the diet.

Because prolonged cooking does destroy the vitamins, vegetables should be cooked in as short a time as possible and in tightly-covered vessel—for the oxygen of the air helps to destroy the vitamins, too. If vegetables are thoroughly masticated, they are better for the teeth and the development of the jaws when they are firm rather than mushy.

The list of vegetables eaten raw should be extended. There is hardly a vegetable that is not delicious eaten raw, if it is grated or ground fine and served with an appropriate sauce. None of the vitamins and none of the minerals are lost when vegetables are eaten in this manner.

If raw vegetables are ground or grated they can be given to any child who has all his teeth. They can be used singly or in combination.
